Mohamed Mehasseb	Consultant Gynaecological Surgeon, Glasgow Royal Infirmary	In the year prior to my appointment as Chair of the committee, and during the guideline development, I would see women with various gynaecological complaints, sometimes with HMB. I would investigate and treat HMB as per established clinical guidelines. I would use hysteroscopy as a diagnostic tool like, mainly in the context of postmenopausal bleeding, but in indicated cases of HMB as well. I do not run regular hysteroscopy clinics and do not perform outpatient hysteroscopies. I	Personal, financial, specific	After the final guideline committee meeting, Mohamed volunteered that he had done some private practice in the area of the guideline. This was discussed with senior NGA and NICE staff and Mohamed offered to step down. This offer was accepted. As a precaution, two further checks were added to the normal QC process: 1) the guideline committee was informed what had happened and given an additional opportunity to comment on their
